Term 3, Week 2

Principal's Report

Welcome to Week 2! On Friday we submitted our entry for the Picasso Cows Program. The design had to showcase our learning in our inquiry theme, Health and Nutrition. Through this module, students learnt about the importance of healthy eating from the five food groups and information on the types of foods which provide rich sources of nutrients for their growth and development. It also covered the importance of building and maintaining strong, healthy bones during childhood and throughout life. Our entry will be judged by a panel and the school with the best cow design will be awarded a prize of $1,000 cash! Years 3-6 students demonstrated great team work throughout the program.

Best wishes to Logan Eldridge and Chelsea Winn who will be competing in the Zone Finals of the Lions Public Speaking this Sunday, 4th August at Finley. Miss Jeffs and I look forward to being in the audience on the afternoon.

Plans for our 150th Birthday celebration continue. All students and their families are asked to join us on Sunday 22nd September for the commemorations. Please mark the date on your calendar. The P&C will be holding a working bee in the Community Garden next Sunday 11th August from 10am – 12pm. Please come along and lend a hand. Bring your shovels, rakes and gardening gloves. Many hands make light work!

Have a wonderful week! Nyree Taylor Principal

Alpha Show 'Cinderella'

K-6 students are off to Oaklands CS on Thursday 8th August for the Alpha Show 'Cinderella'. 'Alpha's Cinderella' is probably the show with the chance for the audience to interact the most! More songs, kids on stage and three villains! Children are ready to protest the injustice served up to Cinderella by her stepsisters and the Evil Stepmother, as this is often the most relevant to how a child can feel. Cinderella as a result sometimes feels like she's not good enough, so the Fairy Godmother helps her by taking her and the audience on a beautifully guided journey called an 'emotional flood', that can invigorate all the love and joy you need in any moment. The Prince himself is not perfect and gets help to overcome his fears of dancing!

A Peep into the Past of the Jerilderie Public School

In a Newsletter item printed last year, readers were reminded of how co-operation between the school, the community, and the local Council, led to the provision of the town's swimming pool. In an earlier life this very Newsletter was also used as a means to fulfilling a need once perceived as lacking within the community.

The History of JPS to be released by the P&C Committee at the school's 150th celebrations to be held on Sunday 22 September, outlines how school magazines of the past interacted with commercial newspapers.

The first attempt at producing a school magazine occurred in 1918 when the local paper, the Jerilderie Herald and Urana Advertiser, in their issue of 31 October 1918 published the following news item.

Public School Magazine - We received a copy of the Jerilderie Public School Monthly Magazine for October. It is a very well got up and interesting periodical which we understand is only circulated amongst the pupils. Its frontpiece has the patriotic flags, - the Union Jack and Australian Flags. In the centre is a copy of the Roll of Honor Board now placed in the main school building, and on which is neatly inscribed the names of all the ex-pupils of the school who have enlisted. The inner pages contain a lot of local interesting matter relating to the old and present pupils at the school

While teachers with different priorities or views to reporting on school activities come and go, it is probably more to the point though, that because the local paper is more in need of news to fill their columns than perhaps regional papers are, they would foster a more closer co-operation between the Head Teacher and the paper's Editor, to ensure school news items got published.

It was not until the commencement of the 1967 school year that a regular school magazine was re-introduced, called Durrans Durra. With the departure of Headmaster Don Downward at the end of the 1968 school year the Durrans Durra also disappeared from community life. But then in September 1972 the Jerilderie-Coleambally News ceased production, having distributed news within the town and community of Jerilderie since January 1969, when the Murrumbidgee Irrigator of Leeton took over the old Jerilderie Herald and Urana Advertiser, who in turn, had faithfully served the Jerilderie district since 1883.

The Jerilderie community then turned to the Southern Riverina News, a district newspaper based in Finley since 1970, and serving the areas previously covered by the Berrigan Advocate (established in 1892), Tocumwal Guardian (est. 1908), and the Finley Mail (est. 1912).

Prior to 1970 the Advocate, the Guardian, and the Mail, had in 1963 merged to form the Murray Valley newspapers, who continued to publish the newspapers individually, but from a central location.

In 1988 the SRN was purchased by the McPherson Newspaper group, of Shepparton, who had embarked on a course of acquiring a number of rural newspapers under their banner.

Of local interest is that the regular correspondent to the Jerilderie Newscene now called Just Jerilderie - Judy Ryan - has been submitting items of local Jerilderie interest since June 1990.

In response to a perceived need for not only a school magazine, but more broadly, a community-based newspaper made its debut in Jerilderie, in October 1997. Called the Swagman, it was produced by the Jerilderie Public School Headmaster, Dennis Burton, acting as Editor, Valerie McCormick, Administrative Assistant at the Public School as Publisher, and Edith (Sadie) Herrick, Teachers' Aide at the local Pre School, acting as the fearless roving reporter. There were some start-up costs associated with producing the Swagman, met by donations from the local Apex and Lions Clubs, and the Jerilderie Shire Council.

In March 2000, the fortnightly community magazine and the school magazine separated into different entities and produced by separate organisations – the Swagman ceasing production in December 2001.

For a brief period between July 2004 and December 2010, Kate Howard, wife of the Jerilderie Ambulance Station Officer, produced a new community newspaper called the Jerilderie Journal, with the school's weekly magazine continuing to be published In-house.

It could be said therefore, that this current Jerilderie Public School Newsletter commenced its life in October 1997, with Judy Ryan reproducing items from time to time in her Just Jerilderie column in the SRN.
